MEOPERICULO.

BY SENATOR BENJ. SEWELL.

I am not the official spokesman of the Republican party in Kentucky, and have no authority to speak for the Republican candidates for office. But I am a Republican; I am a citizen; I am a Kentuckian, and have a right to express my views and let the people take them for what they are worth. I am not a candidate for any office, but if I were I would not be too cowardly to express my views, and they would be the same as I have now.

Usually my mind is too extensively engaged to pay attention to the pestiferous pulkeys wearing the black garb of pinched-pouched politicians. I am writing a book, "The Cusser," and but for a little recreation in the sidefields of intellectuality, I would not allow the willing voice of the prancing politician to disturb me in my pleasant dreams for a better and greater Kentucky.

I read a few days since a neat ten-minute paper. It was well seasoned with hot slop and slush-slosh, and in its stink-holes the croaking of the warty, green frogs could be heard; its columns had the stink of the political polecats, and on its pages was the rotten pulp of its weekly buzzard, that would rather feast on "office pie" than hard luck and sow belly and Beckham brandy. Yes, one of the green-eyed jumpers spawned off the following "pertinent questions" in a seriousness and asked A. E. Willson, the Republican candidate for Governor, to answer them:

"1. If elected Governor, would you pardon the assassins of Governor Goebel?"

"2. Would you, in the face of the fact that your party platform refused to pledge your party to the closing of saloons on Sunday, enforce the Sunday closing laws?"

"3. How many times have you opposed the nominees of your own party?"

Gez whizz! These questions are whoppers, but they are not new ones. I am not the candidate for Governor, but speaking for myself, I would not be in favor of pardoning the assassins of the murdered Bill Goebel. Neither am I in favor of making such questions an issue more than the pardoning of other men convicted of killing some useless little scound. I do not know the assassins of Bill Goebel, but when found and proven guilty by the testimony of unbiased witnesses in a court of justice they should have the penalties of the law meted out to them in the same spirit of fairness and even-handed justice that are given to other assassins, not because they killed Bill Goebel, but because their act was murder and they should suffer the penalties as other criminals do.

The crime for killing Bill Goebel is no graver and the penalty no severer under the law than for killing Billy Sockwad, and those charged for their killing should be treated exactly alike. If it is right to donate $100,000 of blood money to prosecute and persecute the assassin of Bill Goebel an equal amount should be appropriated to prosecute the murderer of Bill Sockwad, or, perchance, the assassins of James Cockrill, Dr. Cox and James B. Marcan. If it is justice for a Democratic Governor to appoint a Democratic judge to preside over the trials of Breathitt Democratic assassins, and a Democratic jury to sit in judgment on the case, and this happened in Lee county, where three-fourths of the population are Republicans, and then later on for the Democratic judge ignore the representatives of the Commonwealth, and fail to remand or continue the case upon the presumption that the "roads later on would get bad and the Commonwealth's witnesses would not be present," and then for the Democratic judge to give an interview and slander the representatives of the Commonwealth by saying they "refused to prosecute," and then instructing the jury (that was sworn over the protest of the Commonwealth) to "find the defendant not guilty"—well, if the Democratic party is going to be that hard on assassins I want to "fine" the Democratic party and be a member of the Democratic State Central Committee before I go into the wholesale business of assassination. Don't you, Lomny? Then, if I wanted to approach one of Eve's blushing beauties, for the purpose of having illegal sexual intercourse, and she got insulted and refused and turned to flee from my hellish desires, I would "jiss" out with my "famous magnificent forty-four" and shoot her in the back dead and then get a trial in a mock court and have a jury find me guilty and send me to the penitentiary for life, where I would pleasantly hold down a soft soap for a few years, and then I would have Jim Hargis write the beloved and gallant little Boy Blue Governor the following epistle: "Dear Gov.: I address you as 'dear' because you have been 'dear' to me, and you know I have been 'dear' to you. I do as I dam please. You need not worry about Breathitt county; if the boys fail to vote dem, be assured that the count will give you a routing majority, anyway. Now, dear, I want to ask a little favor. Ben Sewell is only charged with killing a woman by shooting her in the back because she would not consent to throw away her virtue and her womanhood, and his disappointment was so great that he was provoked to do the act. He is a good Democrat, one of my boys, and I want him pardoned. Yours on command, James Hargis."

This is one of the kind of pardons that has been meeting favor by the present Chief Executive of Kentucky. If I were Governor I would think it more honorable to pardon the assassins of Bill Goebel than I would to pardon a man for murdering an innocent woman because she refused to submit to his brutish desires. Now, what say you, Lomny?

This pardoning talk is the thunder of the pea-headed politicians. I only mention such in necessary self-defense in response to the tommy-rot questions being propounded by the inklingers of the State. In the case above referred to, the Governor may have been imposed upon by his friends and did not investigate before making the pardon. But there is no need to inject politics into this or that pardon. He who does so insults the intelligence of the people, and the party that does so is more fit for prison stripes than it is for the purple robes of official authority.

Now, in regard to the second question, "would you enforce the Sunday closing laws, in view of the fact that your party platform is silent on the matter?" The question is false on its face. The Republican platform is not silent on the question. In it the party pledges itself to the enforcement of all the laws in the Statutes. No certain violation is picked out for certain vengeance, it is true, and therein lies the golden egg of Republican wisdom and common sense. Partiality in the enforcement of the laws has been Kentucky's besetting sin. No one violation should be picked out for the vengeance of prosecutors, but all violations should be picked out for such vengeance by the prosecutors of the law. All law breakers alike, whether they be Sabbath breakers or man killers, should have the penalties inflicted upon them as made and provided in such cases. And this is exactly the kind of treatment the Republicans of Kentucky promise the law breakers.

The third question (but is not it a stinger?) "How many times have you opposed the nominees of your party?" I do not know whether Willson has been in the "bolting business" or not. I hope he has, and I think I am a good Republican. Those who know me call me the fire and brimstone and the hot pepper of Republicanism, but I do not deserve the compliment if it is an unparadisable sin in politics to do a little bolting. Support the nominees, right or wrong? I am not built of that kind of stuff, Lomny, and I know Willson is not. He who votes 'er straight for the sake of regularity, knowing the nominees to be rascals and their cause unjust, ought to be disfranchised and his tobacco taken away from him. He who does not courage enough to exercise independence in the face of such a crisis is unfit to be dog peltier, much less Governor of Kentucky. But for "failing to support the nominees" the State of Pennsylvania today would be hotter than hell as the hotbed of boodle and graft; but for a little bolting the State of Missouri would be the mecca and Gretna Green for boot-ers and grafters.

Governmental wrongs, graft and corruption are righted by those who have the courage and manhood to do a little bolting. Great reforms that tell for the good of the people are brought about by men of backbone and independence, those worthy the right of suffrage. No party is perfect enough to always select worthy candidates.

So if Willson has done a little bolting I think more of him than ever. Kentucky needs a Governor who has backbone and moral courage about him; Kentucky needs a Governor that will slap his party hard in the face if it does wrong; a Governor that will not aid, assist, encourage, counsel and advise and uphold his party in wrong doing. Willson is the man, isn't he, Lomny?

The Louisville Herald to Award $10,000 in Prizes

Monday, July 1, The Louisville Daily Herald and the Louisville Courier-Journal have announced a contest for prizes in the order of merit. These prizes are in keeping with the main awards, and there will be no less than $10,000 in prizes to be awarded to the winners of the contest.

How to Enter the Race. All that is necessary to enter The Herald's contest is to send your name and address to the manager of the Contest Department, together with the name of one or two other parties who live in the vicinity. Another way to enter the race is by clipping out a few coupons, published daily in The Herald, filling them out properly and sending them to the Contest Department of The Herald, Louisville, Ky.

Every Woman Eligible. Every woman is eligible to compete in this contest, who is a respectable white resident of Indiana or Kentucky, and between the ages of fifteen and thirty years. Send in your name at once if you desire to compete, as the race only extends over a period of nine weeks—July 1 to August 31, inclusive.

How to Get Votes. Votes may be secured in The Herald's contest by clipping the coupons from the daily paper, and counting as one vote, and also valid one week or by securing subscriptions for the daily, Sunday and weekly Herald, and having such subscriptions paid for in advance. A new yearly subscription counts for 2400 votes; a new six months' subscription counts for 1600 votes, and so on. Full information on this point may be learned by reading The Herald or writing the Contest Department for particulars.

Enter Now. If you are eligible enter this contest at once. You may win the grand prize of $10,000 in cash or a brand new $2,000 automobile. If you are not eligible enter the name of your wife, mother, sister, friend, relative or sweetheart, as the case may be, and let her win a prize. It will cost you nothing to nominate a candidate, and it costs a candidate nothing to try for one of the prizes. Now is the time to get busy in this gigantic contest. You may never have another opportunity to get such valuable prizes so little effort. Enter the race before some one else in your vicinity gets all the votes for you. To enter the contest simply send your name and address to the Contest Department of The Herald, Louisville, Ky., and you will receive full information upon every point of the race by return mail.

GIRL AND GOSSIP.

And now the summer girl fills on the scene. With smiling face and, incidentally, some daintily and bewitching figure. And pretty gowns, pluk, heliotrope and green. And long and all the shades that go between. All through the day she wields a wondrous power. On tennis court, the bathing beach and lawn. And any young man improve the shining hour. To pay due homage ere the chance is gone. Sweet is the maiden in her love of gloe, And though full many a covert glance she counts her conquests, one and two and three.

Behold the gossip as she sits and knits. And tells that peer girl's morals into bits. —Laura W. Sheldon in New York Times.

A Safford.

First Beggar—What's that paper you've got?
Second Beggar—List of places where there's a lack of workmen.
First Beggar—You crazy? We won't go near such places!
Second Beggar—Chump! That's why I got it!—Philadelphia Blatter.

She Knew a Cocktail.

Leonard B. just arrived from duty in the Philippines, came eastward to New York with his wife, picking up en route their twelve year-old daughter, who had been left with a friend during their absence.
The little one had fallen asleep, and as the train was nearing the Grand Central station her parents fell to discussing the hotel question.
"Well, as we shall only remain one night," said Mrs. B., "I vote for the Manhattan."
The couple were suddenly electrified by their little girl's sitting up and in drowsy tones inquiring:
"Oh, mamma, may I have the cherry?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Stolen Ham.

A dorky was walking along South street, Philadelphia, carrying a large ham on his shoulder, when he was accosted by a big policeman, who exclaimed gruffly:
"Say, there, you black rascal, where did you get that ham?"
The dorky looked around and, seeing no one very much surprised at his possession of the ham, said, "Who put dar 'ere ham on mah shoulder?"

Real Stop Watch.

"Hold on there!" shouted the old farmer, looking at his watch. "You be violating the speed laws of this county."
"What do you know about our speed?" retorted the angry chauffeur. "You haven't a stop watch."
"Haven't a stop watch? Why, by gum, this watch stops every two or three minutes. Only paid 80 cents for it, neighbor."—Chicago News.

Humor

THEY MET AGAIN.

Why the Sporty Looking Chap Cut His Vacation Short.

After the sporty looking chap had had breakfast at the little hotel in the Catskills, where he had come for a few weeks' vacation, the old farmer who ran the place called him aside and said:

"I understand you gave my boy a big red of money and some jewelry to put in his trunk."

"Yes, I thought that was the best place for them. You don't mind keeping the stuff for me, do you?"

"Great snakes, no!" replied the farmer as he rubbed his hands and chuckled. "The boy says ye bring three party heavy trunks with ye."

"Yes, I always travel with plenty of clothes, tennis rackets, fishing flies, etc. You've no objection to so much baggage, have you?"

"Not a bit of it, sir, not a bit of it! I wish ye had hung 'em on twelve with ye. It's kinder funny ye ain't recognized me yet."

"No, I don't remember to have ever seen your face before," said the new arrival.

"Well, maybe my whiskers be a little longer or sunbiter, but ye orter know my voice. We had quite a talk one day in New York."

"In New York?" stammered the sporty looking chap as he turned pale.

"Yes, I don't ye remember that me bandit ye $100 for that gold brick? I knowed ye the minute I seen ye on the wagon last night. Sunkes, but that was a most howlful swindle ye worked on me, son!"

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Oh, nothing. I never false no fuss unless there's a good occasion for it. The boy says ye jest went wild over the scenery comin' up on the wagon, an' maybe ye'd like to walk down to the depot an' get some more views on the way. The next train to the city passes there at seven thirty, an' if ye want now, while I'm looking for the constable, ye'll jest about catch it. An' don't do no worryin' 'bout that cash of yours, son, as I'll take the best of care of it."

It was a ten mile walk to the depot, but when the 11:30 for New York came along it carried away a footsore and drowsy looking individual, who sobbed and muttered and shook his fist through the car window as the train started off again. —A. B. Lewis in Judge.

'Compromise.

In a jury trial in a small town not many miles from civilization the rural gentlemen into whose hands the fate of the plaintiff was placed were so stubbornly divided that they were some twenty odd hours in reaching a verdict. As they left the court, after returning their verdict, one of them was asked by a friend what the trouble was.

"Well," he said, "six of 'em wanted to give the plaintiff $4,000, and six of 'em wanted to give him $3,000, so we split the difference and gave him $500."

—Woman's Home Companion.

His First Banquet.

City Nephew—But, Uncle Henry, you left the banquet table too early. You should have waited for the bonbons and the repartee.

Uncle Henry—Oh, don't worry, bub. I was satisfied. You see, I don't drink nor smoke. —Des Moines Register.

"VENGEANCE IS MINE.

I Will Repay." Saith the Lord.

Jim Hargis has escaped from the last indictment brought against him for murder. By the instructions of the judge at Sandy Hook he was acquitted of the murder of Dr. Cox. Floyd Byrd, who has been leading the prosecution against Hargis for the last four years, and Commonwealth's Attorney Waugh withdrew from the case and refused to prosecute further when Judge Moody denied the motion for a continuance on account of the enforced absence of some of the most important witnesses for the State. They said it was useless to attempt to carry on the case without the witnesses. If Judge Caraes, who removed the case from Jackson to Sandy Hook, did so, as has often been charged, for the purpose of securing the release of Hargis, he has succeeded in his purpose, for Hargis is now a free man, able to return to his fastnesses in lead-ridden Breathitt and work vengeance on those who have dared prosecute him or bear witness against him in these cases.

If Hargis is innocent of the conspiracy to murder Mareum and Cox, he has been a badly abused and prosecuted man, though he has never lacked for influential friends to stand by him. If he is guilty of murder, as was declared by the jury that awarded damages against him in favor of the widow of J. B. Mareum, and has been able to escape through the corruption of juries and manipulation of the judiciary, it is the most monstrous outrage ever perpetrated upon any Commonwealth in the history of this Union. Having never read all the evidence in these cases we are not prepared to offer an opinion, neither is it within the province of a news paper to pass upon the guilt or innocence of any one, but we do say that, however lamentable it is for the guilty to escape their just punishment at the hands of the law, it is much better that the guilty escape than that the innocent be convicted. For there is a higher law than that administered by the courts of Kentucky—the Law of God—which says "Thou shalt not kill."

If Hargis is indeed guilty of the charges brought against him, the mark of Cain, if not upon his brow, is seared upon his soul, and will remain forever. If he planned and executed the foul assassinations of which he has been indicted, the verdict of acquittal of all the juries in Christendom cannot be removed by entreaties and demands of "Out damned spot." If he knows by his deeds of violence women have been made widows and children fatherless; if there rankles in his breast the knowledge that he has caused three immortal souls to be ushered before their Maker without warning or preparation, his punishment, under the scorpion lash of a guilty conscience, will be more terrible than any that could possibly be devised by man. His days will be filled with the dread of retribution following like a Nemesis on his track; and around his sleepless couch in the wee small hours of the night will talk the ghosts of Cox and Mareum, their accusing fingers forever reminding him of that day when he, too, shall go hence to his reward, and whispering in his startled ear that fearful and irrevocable sentence, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."—Danville Advocate.

The judicial farce enacted at Sandy Hook recently, and resulting in Jim Hargis, charged of murdering Dr. B. D. Cox, in Jackson, five years ago, being set scot free July 20th, adds another black page to the many that now disgrace the history of Kentucky.

So absolutely powerless were the prosecuting attorneys, to fight the case against the great odd—they were compelled to face, that all of them withdrew from the case after the jury had been empaneled according to instructions, with the judge and jury, although it is the sworn duty of the judge to see that the accused was brought to a fair and impartial trial.

Such things as this, brings disgrace and disrepute upon the fair escutcheon of Kentucky, and makes politics a damnable curse to her good people. It is why feuds in Kentucky are rampant and men are slain like dogs; why the State is dragging along in the old ruts of a half a century ago, why capital is withheld from investments within our domain; why our schools are referred to as mockery; why our sons and our daughters are leaving their home for new environments; and, why the laborers, both men and women, have gone to more profitable fields of employment. Politics, the worst, the rottenest on earth, capable of doing every mean and contemptible thing imaginable, and worst of all, besmearing the fair name of an idolized birthplace and home, of the grandest, noblest and proudest people on earth.

Are we powerless? Is there no way to bring about a change for the better? Shall this state of affairs continue to exist without a protest upon the part of the people? It is sad indeed to think about and sadder too if a correction is not made and made soon.—Brooksville Review.

He advises those who are thinking of going to Hamilton to first make an inquiry of some one who has been there.

There will be preaching at the Strong grave yard, near the mouth of Lost Creek, the second Sunday in August by Revs. R. B. Landrum and J. H. Combs and others. Everybody invited to attend. All persons interested are requested to meet on Saturday before and clean off the grave yard and prepare for the services.

Brandy Noble, on last Saturday morning, sometime between the third and fourth watch, while trying privily to fill his casket with the vegetable compounds of another man's belongings, was overtaken by a volley of shot and shell that made the old man glad to retreat from his place of unwelcome repose and return home with the largest dose of nature's herb pills he had ever before taken. He seems to be getting better.

I know of one who presents the aspect of a great man ruined by his innate vices and impoverished by his official venality and decline of industry and fallen into the dry rot of advancing decay. This man's large mind of carnality, with a felon like creatures combined, constitutes a bulwark of Satan that the most powerful of the right minded can hardly tear down. But Napoleon's injustice fell; and George the third's tyranny came to a fatal end, and so the profits of said Mr. Groveler will be found lavished upon the same burning touch that brings all the provocations to an untimely end. Suffering the foul dregs of polluting passions to convey him from the delightful retreat of truth, honor and justice he must encounter the same fate which all betrial persons must meet.

THE RANGER.

A STATEMENT.

EDITOR NEWS:

I desire to say to the public that I was legally and fairly nominated for Circuit Judge at the recent primary held July 20, on the face of the official returns, as certified by the precinct officers, I was elected by three (3) votes.

The call of the primary provided that the Republican Executive Committee of each county in the district meet in the court house of their respective counties July 23, canvass and count the votes and properly certify them to the district committee. The committees in each county in the district, except Leslie, met on the day required and canvassed and counted the vote and certified the same, as provided.

I went to Hyden early on the morning of the 23d to look after my interests in the race. I soon ascertained that there was a job on hand; that I was going to be counted out. Dr. Ray, the chairman of the Leslie committee, had left early that morning for Clay county, about sixteen miles away, to visit a patient, but would return some time during the day. There was only one committeeman in the town and everything was very quiet, indeed. I at once saw that the plan was to wait until the other county committees had certified the vote, so as to know what had to be done to make effective work of it. My opponent had left Hyden and came to Booneville and witnessed the count of the Owsley vote. He returned to Hyden just after noon Wednesday. In the meantime the vote of the other counties had been ascertained by official count and reported over the phone, and it was known certainly that I was three votes ahead, to take the official vote of Leslie as certified by the precinct officers. Dr. Ray and a quorum of the Leslie county committee were forthcoming as soon as Mr. Lewis returned, and the committee met in the court house in the afternoon of Wednesday, July 24, and the canvass began.

The official returns from Big Creek precinct showed by the officers' certificate that there were eight ballots spoiled, but there was nothing to show that there was any questioned ballots, though there was an envelope with the stub book of that precinct which contained eight ballots; there was no certificate attached to them, showing whether or not they had been counted, or, if counted, for whom, and signed by the election officers, as required by Statute. The election officers had failed to write their names across the seal of the envelope, as required by Statute, though the envelope had been sealed with wax and the election seal, but had been broken open. I objected to the counting of these ballots, because the law requires a separate certificate of the election officers, showing whether or not they had or had not been counted, and none was attached thereto, and the election officers had not written their names across the seal of the envelope; the requirement of the Statute in these particulars destroyed the sanctity of these ballots and they could not be used to impeach the certificate of the election officers, and the law is well settled on that question. However, the committee after hearing the law read and discussed, went into secret session and counted these ballots; five for Lewis and one for Eversole, and two they said could not be counted for any one, as there was no means of determining for whom voted. The committee continued the canvass, counted one questioned ballot each from the Marrowbone and Bull Creek precincts, and both for Eversole. It completed the canvass, having added five votes to Lewis and three to Eversole, and declared that Lewis had received 869 votes and Eversole 208 votes, and certified the vote to the district committee, and then adjourned sine die. If this count had stood it would have elected me by one vote. I had three majority on the official returns and this committee added three to me and five to Lewis. The count had not been effective, some half an hour after the committee had adjourned and left the building, some of the members had gotten on their horses to leave, when my opponent demanded another hearing and the committee, over my objections, reconvened and counted for Lewis the two ballots from Big Creek precinct that it had refused to count for any one at the first meeting, and this elected Lewis by one vote. This is the way in which Mr. Lewis secured his nomination. When he and his attorneys secured the counting of any of these questioned ballots, as they called them, though certified as spoiled ballots by the precinct officers, they knew it was illegal; that these ballots had not been preserved according to law and could not be counted for any one. My opponent, Mr. Lewis, forced his own county committee to reconvene and count him in. I submit the question now to the public what is to become of the country when the judge of the circuit court secures his election in the way my opponent has? and I know I have told you the truth.

What does the boasted fairness of the Republicans mean when such things as this is going on in their ranks? A free vote and a fair count has been insisted upon as one of the fundamental principles of our party. Are we practicing what we preach, or did it take a second count in Leslie county to get a fair and correct count? This is a matter that the Republican committees of the party must deal with, and the rank and file of the voters are not responsible for it, and I am sure they are not willing to stand for it. And while I regret very much to have a contest over this nomination, I can not stand for such robbery and shall contend for my rights to the crossing of the last ditch. And I want to say to the public that I am still a candidate, and am sure that the committee, when it hears the case, will declare me the legal nominee. I hope my friends will stand by me, as many of them I am assured they will, and give me a chance to demonstrate my rights, which I will do. Thanking my friends for their support, and feeling under many obligations to them, I am respectfully,

JOHN C. EVERSOLE,
Booneville, Ky., July 30, 1907.

Hargis Resigns.

Jim Hargis has sent in his resignation as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. If he had loved the Democratic party as he claims, he would have done this long ago. When he assumed the duties of the position we had a Democratic Congressman, a Democratic Circuit Judge, a Democratic Commonwealth's Attorney, a Democratic State Senator, a Democratic Representative, and all the county officers of Breathitt county Democratic. All these have been lost to the Democratic party except the Circuit Judge, and even his district went Republican at the last election. If Jimmie had attended to business and stayed out of politics these things might not have happened. However, we are willing for him to have a fair show to do what he can honorably in the ranks.

Eggs That Jump.

Your friends will be mystified completely if you do this trick very carefully.
Take a number of eggs; remove the yolks and whites so that only the shells remain.
To each of these shells paste one end of a strand of fine silk, attach

THE TRICK EXPLAINED.
The other end to one of your fingers. Then place them in a shallow basket.
In doing the trick be sure that your audience are far enough away to be unable to see the silk threads.
Now say that you will be able to make the eggs leap into the air by magnetizing them with your fingers.
Of course, if you move a finger upward and downward, the shell attached to the other end of the strand of silk will move up and down. You can gain a pretty effect by making them dance in time to music.

"Tallow Dick" Killed.
"Tallow Dick" Combs was run over and killed by a train while walking on a trestle near Georgetown Wednesday night. He was one of the witnesses in the Powers case. He formerly lived at Beattyville, where he conducted a barber shop.

The Test.

"At a military dinner," said a G. A. R. man, "I once heard General F. D. Grant tell a story about recruiting."
"He said that there was a certain recruiting office in a town hall along with the various other municipal offices."
"A well dressed young man entered the place one morning with a dilapidated air."
"I'd like," he began.
"Strip!" interrupted the busy recruiting officer.
"The young man flushed and hesitated. Then, with a sheepish smile, he stripped."
"Jump over that chair," said the officer.
"After two or three balks the young man made the jump."
"Now," said the officer, "take this twenty pound weight and see how many times you can put it over your head."
"The young man put up the weight, with much panting and grunting, about fifty times."
"The officer made an entry in a book."
"Now run around the room as hard as you can," he said, "till I tell you to stop."
"But the youth uttered a loud, angry oath and began hurriedly to put on his clothes."
"No," he shouted, "I'll be hanged if I will! I'd rather stay single all the rest of my life!"
"He thought he was in the marriage license office."

Marriage Licenses.
The following marriage licenses have been issued since our last publication:
Sigil Herald and Miss Martha Raleigh, both of Canoe.

Two Killings.

Elisha Hughes was shot and killed by Jordan Smith, at the mouth of Pigeon Roost, in Perry county, about eight miles from Hazard. They were both drinking and Hughes attempted to cut Smith with a knife, when Smith shot and killed him. Smith was arrested and placed in the Hazard jail to await his examining trial.

While some boys were bathing in the Cumberland river, near Harlan, they began to throw sand at each other, when two of the boys became angry and Ransom Simpson's son threw a rock and struck one of Samuel Turner's boys, instantly killing him. The boys were arrested and taken to Harlan and were held in a bond of $1,000 each. Among the boys was Joseph Walker, of Hazard, brother of Rev. J. W. Walker, of Jackson, who gave bond. It turned out in proof that Walker had nothing to do with the killing.

FINE ROAD BUILDING

Experimental Work of the Agricultural Department.

ALWAYS READY TO INSTRUCT

Government Anxious to Help Any Community That Wishes to Improve Its Highways—How to Obtain Assistance of the Department.

The office of public roads of the department of agriculture is making its influence felt throughout the United States, and in no place is it more conspicuous than in the vicinity of Washington. The district of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia each have something to show for the work that has been done in the way of road improvement, and while comparatively little has been accomplished in comparison to the vast length of highways that need improvement, there is sufficient to form an interesting object lesson to public authorities in the extension of the good work which has been begun and in which instruction has been given by the agents of the government.

The work of road improvement was begun by the government in compliance with a law directing the secretary of agriculture to furnish expert advice in road building. In their effort to comply with the law in an efficient manner the office of public roads has referred to local communities throughout the United States the services of its corps of highway engineers and experts, who are prepared to advise with persons in such communities as to the best methods of construction to be employed in any locality.

Any community desirous of constructing an object lesson road will find the office of public roads ready to act as instructor in the good work, but the office has had to make plain to people in various sections that, while it will assist in such work, the community itself must take it up in a substantial manner. The office undertakes to provide both highway engineers and experts, who go over the ground and consider the questions of available materials for road construction as well as a plan for the road to be built. They prepare plans with proper grades and all details indicated and also in many instances furnish machinery for the work. The people of the community to be benefited are expected to furnish common labor and teams and to have on hand materials to be used in the construction of the road.

One of the recent works begun by the office of public roads is the construction of a road from the station at Georgetown, Va., to the old town of Georgetown, a distance of two and a half miles. The road was a good sample of up hill and down dale, with mud almost any day, until the experts in road building got hold of it and improved it.

In order to obtain the assistance of the department application must be made by the properly constituted local authorities who have legal control of the roads in their community. The assistance given is intended to be purely educational. The ability of the department to furnish machinery is a great aid to many communities, as in that way the local authorities get a practical demonstration of just what they are expected to purchase for a contribution of the work. The department secured funds for the purchase of machinery, which it shifts from place to place as it is needed in its experimental work.

The department has begun experimental roads in many parts of the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian line to the Gulf. Each section requires a somewhat different plan of improvement, and each time experts make plans for a community they take into their fund of information on the conditions affecting road building in various sections. It is expected that in the course of a few years the effect of this campaign for good roads will be seen very plainly throughout the United States. There are advocates of national aid for road building, and it is not unlikely that a strong effort will be made in the next Congress to have an appropriation for this purpose. In many localities in which instruction in the building of good roads and education as to their desirability are most needed the people are unable to secure enough money to do their part toward the construction of the object lesson road. It is believed that if such communities were given a piece of road as an object lesson it would not be long before they would possibly means for continuing the work on other roads. This is one of the arguments that will be used in favor of national aid, and there are a good many people who believe that someone will take up this work and carry it through to a conclusion, so that a road building campaign for the United States will be held all over the United States.

"We never reject of eating to rule" was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to very one without exception during his life. Because it is hard for him, even in small quantities, to be kept when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly. We should also eat the stomach as much as possible. The use of a little Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

A Man Eating Canal.

Perhaps the greatest waste of human life ever recorded was caused by the cutting of a canal in China. The work was begun in 1825, and though the canal was twenty-three miles long, eighty feet wide and twelve feet deep, and passed through forests and marshes, it was finished in six weeks from its beginning. No fewer than 20,000 men worked at it day and night, and 7,000 died of fatigue.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give very possible help to the digestive organs so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Andrew Jackson.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

His whole life was a history of overcoming obstacles.

ANDREW JACKSON was an example of the triumph of will power over difficulties. His whole life was a history of overcoming obstacles. Many of these obstacles, however, were in his own nature. One of them was a hot anger that constantly reared up enemies in his path. Another was a wild and reckless disposition in youth. A third was physical disease. One of his military campaigns was made at a time when he could hardly sit in the saddle because of pain. All the latter part of his life he suffered from ill health and wounds.

Of the outward obstacles in the way of this indomitable man, poverty was perhaps the chief. The loss of both parents in youth added to this handicap. The second was a rough pioneer environment where his life was constantly in danger. The third was the neglect and opposition of other people. At one time during the Creek campaign he was left almost alone. The term of enlistment of his men having expired, nearly all of them went home. At another time the force under his command was disbanded by the government. He was always antagonized by the chief men in congress and by all the military leaders.

Despite these fearful adverse odds to win. There are few examples of success in all our history more conspicuous. He won against his personal enemies at home. He won in all his battles. He won over congress. He won against the national bank. He won in his fight with nullification.

His motives are illuminative of the man. He often said: "Nothing is done till all is done." Another phrase came constantly on his lips was, "A clean victory or a clean defeat." When others objected to his plans, he silenced them by peremptorily exclaiming, "I will take the responsibility." At one time in youth, when a rail on which he tried to cross a swollen stream was nearly swept over by a current, after his companions had been trying to show him some way close he could cross danger. He said he would get them out, and he did. When the massacre at Fort Mims occurred, he was in the field immediately, though he had to be attended by his physician, who feared he would die on his way to camp.

A prominent manufacturer, Wm. A. Farwell, of Lansing, N. C., relates a most remarkable experience. He says: "After taking less than three bottles of Electric Bitters, I felt like one rising from the grave. My trouble is Bright's disease, or the Diabetes stage. I feel believe Electric Bitters will cure me permanently, for it has already stopped the liver and bladder complications which have troubled me for years." Guaranteed at Jackson Drug Co.
